

Sign the petition for a new law

You should be able to know if your canned tomatoes, your clothes and your phone are produced in an ethically responsible way.

Therefore, Danish companies and investors must control the ethics throughout the whole production chain.

Currently, it's up to companies to decide to which degree they want to respect the human rights and the environment.

Amnesty wants a law that sets a clear framework for how the companies should treat both employees and the local community, while taking care of the environment.
